HIST 392 Global Environmental History Dr. Emily Story

Whether one is discussing the Chernobyl disaster, the crab fishery in Maryland or global warming, the problems, as well as the proposed solutions, of contemporary environmentalism are all couched in international terms. As such, environmentalism is at the center of 20th century debates about the limits of the nation-state. The emergence of this contemporary international environmentalism is closely linked to the history of the modern world. Topics ranging from the Industrial Revolution, European expansion and colonialism, to revolt, nationalism and the politics of the Cold War are examined. Although the roots of current environmental politics is discussed, the course focuses on the recent past, from the 1880s to the present, and on the challenges to modernity posed by environmental change.

Investigate commercial, religious, cultural and political aspects of French colonialism, with a particular emphasis on the unique traits of French communication and diplomacy with Native American nations.

(3 Hours Credit)

HIST 612 Special Topics Seminar: Ottoman Empire, 1300-1700
Dr. Emin Lelic

An intensive readings or research course on a special topic selected by the instructor. Around the year 1300 a warrior by the name of Osman set out with his followers to carve out a fiefdom and a name for himself. He succeeded beyond his wildest dreams. Indeed, by 1600, the descendants of Osman had built the greatest, most magnificent and powerful empire west of China. Their rule extended across Europe, Asia and Africa.

Students will be invited to discuss the driving historiographical questions of Ottoman history, from 1300-1700 AD. First and foremost, the extraordinary success of the House of Osman. How did a small band of warriors build one of the greatest and longest-lasting empires in world history? Secondly, the so-called “Golden Age” and its inverse, Ottoman “decline.” What distinguished the supposed “Golden Age” from what came before and after? Can we really speak of an Ottoman “decline” in the 17th century?

Students will discuss these and other questions about the Ottoman Empire, including the revival of Eurasian pathways, sexual politics of succession, slaves of the sultan, consolidation of a service elite and protection of a multiconfessional polity. Side by side with historical issues which helped shape Middle Eastern, European and Asian history.

ANTH 102 Biological Anthropology and Archaeology

Dr. Elizabeth Ragan

This course explores humanity's intertwined biological and cultural roots, showing how we became the people we are today. Origin stories are often contentious, with different groups passionately promoting different narratives. By introducing you to the techniques used to discover and understand our ancestors and their works, you will become better equipped to decide how your own particular past unfolded. Understanding our deep roots is vital, since knowing how humans have adapted to sometimes dramatic environmental and social changes – thriving, not merely surviving, over thousands of years – may help us cope with the increasingly disrupted world we live in today.

(4 Hours Credit) Met General Education Prior to Fall 2024: IIIB or IIIC

ANTH 201 Cultural Anthropology Survey: Native North America

Dr. Elizabeth Ragan

A comprehensive survey of the indigenous peoples and traditional cultures of a specific region of the world, focusing on ethnographic and linguistic research.

(4 Hours Credit) Met General Education Prior to Fall 2024: IIIB or IIIC

ANTH 459 Seminar in Anthropology: Sociopolitical Power

Dr. Elizabeth Ragan

Advanced study of current research and literature in a selected field of anthropology. Social and political power is of profound concern today. Do we, as individuals, have meaningful choices in our lives, or are we caught up in powerful institutions that require us to conform to their rules and regulations? Examine pressing questions regarding power's relation to agency, inequality and social change.
