Student Organizations

Do you have materials from your Student Organization that you don't need any more but aren't sure what to do with? Consider donating them to the University Archives! That way future students—and your own children, maybe—will be able to learn about your student organization and its activities. Wondering what is important? Our Student Organizations Records Toolkit (bit.ly/SULStudentOrg) will give you advice on what to keep and not keep. If you have any questions or would like to donate materials, contact University Archivist Jen Pulsney at jhpulsney@salisbury.edu.

Libraries Undergraduate Research Prizes

Proud of some research you've done in the SU Libraries? The SU Libraries once again will be awarding prizes of $250 each to a freshman/sophomore and to a junior/senior for the best research paper or creative project (such as a short story, digital/multimedia project, or artwork) that uses library research/services. The deadline is April 1. See <http://bit.ly/SULURP24> for details on how to apply. The 2023 winners were Noelle Rash and Crystal Ogbuachi, pictured at left.

Did You Know? February 12-18 is National Jell-o Week. Searching for Jell-o or jello in our Business Source Complete database leads to 240 results, including "Pinning Jell-O to a Wall: Regulating AI," in Workforce Solutions Review, "Nailing Jello to a Wall: A Uniform Approach for Adjudicating Insurance Coverage Disputes in Products Liability Cases with Delayed Manifestation Injuries and Damages," in California Law Review, and "Defining 'Business Ethics': Like Nailing Jello to a Wall," in the Journal of Business Ethics.
